NEWS AND EVENTS FOR THE STUDENTS OF GEORGE BROWN COLLEGE NOVEMBER / DECEMBER 1991

LEE AARON ROCKS CASA LOMA

(CASA LOMA) If you are one of those people who think George Brown Pubs are boring, you may be right, considering all the less than subtle rule changes that have occurred over the last four months. But not in this instance—no way!

The night was November 7th and things were starting to heat up inside the Casa Loma gym. Lee Aaron was doing her final sound check before her show. As I waited to get my interview, I pondered over what to say. It's not every day you get to have a conversation with a Rock Queen. But she disappeared. No one knew where she had gone off to, not even her road manager (Tony), or Jason Richards S.A.C. executive who set this up. And showtime was fast approaching.

During the opening bands performance, I had the opportunity to sit with the band and crew. "The days are long and the nights even longer, but it's worth it," one member said, who didn't want to be named.

As we chanted, the music from the opening band drifted in and caught my attention, so I decided to check it out.

The group was AGE OF ELECTRIC (I bet you didn't know that) and the music was loud—really loud. The Albertian Rock band of brothers was giving it their best, to a less than energetic crowd. These young guys had their own style and weren't afraid to show it.

As time wore in there was still no sight of Lee. She wasn't in the building. By this time Jason was starting to sweat a little bit (but you didn't hear it from me), that's when Lee walked in. "Right on time," Tony said looking up from his watch. Since we all got kicked out so they could get ready, I decided to go set up to take pictures with my partner Stacy, and enjoy mother singing lullabies to her at night. With no formal voice training, she has rocked her way to the top with her latest album 'SEX WITH LOVE', and her hot new single 'SOME GIRLS DO,' that went gold in 37 days from its August 23, release date. As the sexy fiery rock queen reminisces about the old days, she tells of what it is like being a rock star in this day and age.

"It's not as easy as it all looks," she smiles, "The days are long and you find yourself preparing for the show more than what your performance is in length. An average day for me is going to bed around four in the morning. My day is just ending when some people are starting to get up for work. So I get up around eleven, have a shower and eat lunch. "She laughs, " Even I like to get 7 hours sleep. Then I call and talk with my manager for 2 hours, and then I go to the hall that the show is at. You have to check the setup and make sure everything is going to be right. Then I go out and have dinner, if you could call it that! Now by this time it's 6:30 or 7 and it's time to do final sound the show.

The crowd was throbbing with anticipation, all the time chanting : Lee, Lee, Lee.

The lights went down and the crowd surged towards the stage nearly crushing Rick Jessop, a security guard. The lights came up and the music roared. Lee Aaron jumped up on stage and into a number from her previous album 'BODY ROCK', 'HANDS ON'.

Canadian rock queen Lee Aaron was rocking and so were the 300+ screaming fans.

Lee Aaron only 24 had come a long way from her 'Metal Queen' days, from being chained to beds, to being chained to the top of the European charts.

She was only 5 years old when she became interested in music, thanks to her checks and then wait," she smiles, "It's a dirty job but someone has to do it."

Although she is more popular in Europe right now, she has been attacking the Canadian charts with two explosive albums in a row.

She goes on to say, "To have a successful album it takes lots of dedication and work and should be timed for a release that would have a maximum impact with the consumers."

"And following a release with a tour will add to the impact and stir up sales across the country," she adds.
Subsequently the band will be leaving at the end of November for Germany to play a three week concert then they will be back for Christmas.

But with the economy being as bad as it is right now, hasn't dulled the progress of the album as thought. The album she suspects should go Platinum sometime before Christmas. And who knows? Maybe she will get nominated again this year for the Junos. In 1986, she was nominated for five Junos, including Best Heavy Metal Video.
So here we are listening to this electrifying performance of an energetic unbelievably talented young Canadian.

For the up and coming Canadian musicians today, Lee offers up some advice for them, "Have a good demo tape, and shop it around to varies labels, and write songs, write lots and lots of songs, and don't waste your time playing in cover bands, they won't get you anywhere fast in this industry."

In duration the show lasted nearly 4 1/2 hours in total, and I am sure that everyone who attended had fun and was not disappointed. And with the encore that lasted nearly fifteen minutes, along with both bands the show was one that should be remembered for at least a couple of months.

And if you missed the show, I am sure there will be other shows, other pubs, other chances. Maybe?

MARKETING CLUB

NEW ORLEANS APRIL 1992

The George Brown College Marketing
Club, a collegiate chapter of the American Marketing Association is excited to announce that we are planning to send fifteen club representatives to the Annual International American Marketing Association Collegiate Conference.

The 1992 International Collegiate Conference, to be held April 9-11, 1992, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in New Orleans, LA promises to be one of the AMA's finest.
This year's conference will offer sessions focusing on chapter management, marketing careers, and professional development.

Our planning has begun early and a New Orleans Conference committee has already been formed. The goal of the New Orleans committee is to apply our club members' skills in the marketing and fundraising areas to generate the necessary funding to attend the Conference.

Timothy D. Mitchell, Vice President of Activities on Student Council and an active Marketing Club member, has taken on the responsibility of chairing our New Orleans committee. With Tim's leadership and the enthusiasm and marketing skills of our members, we are confident that our goals and objectives will be realized.

Meetings are held every Monday in the Club offices next to the SAC office at 3:30 pm. The committee has already held three meetings. Any Marketing Club member interested in attending this years Collegiate Conference in New Orleans should start attending these meetings as soon as possible in order to remain eligible for any conference subsidies.

SPORTS UPDATE

VARSITY

BASKETBALL-MEN

After 4 games this season, the Mens' record is split at 2 wins and 2 losses, with the team standing in a tie for 3rd in the Eastern region of Division 1 league play.

According to team members, the team is starting to "gel", and they're enthusiastic about the team's chances this season.

The Huskies have outstanding talent on the team this year, with the top 2 scorers in the OCAA. Kevin Taylor still leads the way with 31 points per game, while teammate Ainsley Beckford is in 2nd place with 22 points per game.

BASKETBALL-WOMEN

The Women have started the season with 2 straight wins, and are sitting in 2nd place in Division 1, Eastern Region. Last year's OCAA scoring leader, Debbie Grannum, is back, and is setting a pace for her teammates in scoring - 18.5 points per game, 5th in this years scoring race.

VOLLEYBALL-MEN

One game into the season, the Men stand at 1-0 leading the West, Division II

VOLLEYBALL-WOMEN

The Women began their Central League schedule on Friday, November 22 with tournament play at Redeemer College in Ancaster. They finished the weekend with a record of 3 wins and 2 losses. Not a bad start. With more consistency, the Women should be a contender this year.

TOUCH FOOTBALL-MEN

The Men participated in the Little Vanier Cup at Lamport Stadium on Saturday, November 30. This event is a prelude to the University football final at SkyDome - Vanier Cup.

CROSS COUNTRY- PROVINCIAL RESULTS

On October 26, the Huskies team travelled to Timmins for the OCAA Cross Country Championships. The weather on race day was more conducive to ice skating than long distance running: cold and cloudy with snow flurries. Team results were disappointing as the top GBC finisher was Leonard Wandili, in 13th place, out of a field of 35 strong competitors. Coach Norman Lum is looking forward to growing the base of runners and fielding a strong team in 1992.

BADMINTON

The Badminton team has been practising faithfully on Tuesday and Thursday nights to qualify for the Regional Championships in February '92. Any students interested in joining the Huskies, please contact Kim Ng at 392-7094(B), 368-0905(H) or drop into the St. James gym, 6th floor.

SOCCER

Congratulations to MARTHA SALAZAR for her selection to the 1991 Women's Soccer OCAA All-Star team.

INTRAMURALS

Competition in our Badminton, Basketball and Ice Hockey Intramural programs is fierce. College-wide finals for Badminton and Basketball:

Socially Speaking

Well another month has past and how much has changed in your life? I guess that I could say that a lot has changed in mine. But then again, does it really matter? What is happening in this world. Does anyone really care about anything anymore? People continually complain about the G.S.T. but do you see people taking to the streets to protest? I don't think so.

I would like to launch a challenge to any George Brown Student to join me and take up arms in response to the T.T.C.'s decision to allow a price break for high school students while they continue to soak the real people in need of the break, College and University students. Do you really think that you are going to land that dream job while you sit at home contemplating your navel? NO!!! So why do you expect the T.T.C. to give us a break! Let's cause some heads to turn and look our way. I am open to any suggestions.

While I am on the topic of standing up for what you think is right, I will mention something that I feel is important. Please never forget that when you come to college that YOU are paying money to be here. What this allows you to do is stand up and be heard. There is a vast array of committee's and groups that you can openly attend and speak your piece. Trust me when I say that the College will listen to you when you speak. WE ARE THE CLIENTS OF G.B.C., we have a right to say what we want from the system. Please do not sit back and hope for change, get up and fight for what you think is right.

I will also take the time to bring you up-to-date on what is happening with STS since the last time I spoke on this topic. Student Travel Services has launched a $207 000 lawsuit against the College, your St. James SAC, and the Executives personally from St. James. After discussion with our lawyer it appears that nobody except STS has anything to worry about. What they are doing is totally wrong and they will be the losers in this whole mess. For further details, come and see me in the SAC Office.

Congratulations to GBC for holding our 2nd Place at the Annual Mascot Championship at Lulu's Roadhouse in Kitchener last Friday night. We did not get first like we wanted but then again we did not lose ground on last years finish. Hope everyone had fun!!!

I guess that this is all I can say for now as I think my mind has left me.

NEW YEAR'S EVE TRAINING PARTY

Sound strange? Well it's not! Just come out to our pub on December 11 1991. Where is this wild party taking place, you may ask? Well, it's taking place at the EL MOCAMBO TAVERN, on 464 Spadina. (near College & Spadina) Why a New Year's Eve training party? Well why not? Who needs and excuse to have champagne at midnight? That's right, we are going all out, so get ready to sip some FREE champagne, and wear party hats.

This pub will feature Jamie Ollivier of YUK YUK'S & the live band ANYHOW TOWN. The first 25 people who show up at the door get a free party t-shirt!

ALL DRINKS (BEER & MIXED) ARE ONLY $2.49. Finger foods too! Doors open at 7pm and the party goes all night long, so come ready to party hardy.

Tickets are only $5.00 in advance, and $7.00 at the door. Don't be disappointed and get your tickets today. Tickets are available from Carlo, Dave or John in the Kensington SAC office (416)867-2457. Tickets are also available at all SAC offices at all campus'. Everyone is welcome, the more the merrier, so bring along a friend!

Check out the student lounge for upcoming pool tournaments and video/pinball tournaments. We need support for these events to keep on having them, so don't be shy, give it a try.

Look for our upcoming food drives for the Daily Food Bank. This is a worthy cause, and any canned goods will be appreciated.

Thanks to all who participated in the United Way Bar-B-Q. We managed to raise $65.00. Special thanks to the Meat Department for donating the great burgers, and to the guys in shipping/receiving for their assistance.

Until next time, have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, from Kensington SAC.

My Couch Potato Story

Well, it's just been one of those days. A day when everybody is watching you, mocking you, and in general, criticizing your every move.

The worst part is it's not just your imagination. Nothing and nobody can convince you otherwise!

It's just one of those days that would have gone by a lot better if you never left the house. This is why you watch so much television. Because you know that from there, that cushion on that couch in your living room, sprawled out in what ever position is most comfortable and relaxing, you can watch other people instead of them watching you.

At times, you watch these people acting out scripts in non-existent realities, and at other times, you watch real people in their existent realities. I say their existent realities because these realities are not yours.

Oh sure, these realities can be very similar to yours, but there is so much less to yours.

You are turning out to be a meaningless, worthless ephemeral; ashamed of yourself and embarrassed to show your face in public—a disgrace to the human race.

If you had been there at the very beginning of the evolution of the Homo sapien species, a whole new branch would have been created.

If you had been there at the very beginning of the evolution of all religion, you would have created a new religion.

Yes, there would have been the Jews, the Christians, and the Couch Potatoes.

All others would have one day a week to celebrate their religions, a day on which rest was intended, a day which happens to fall on one of the only two days of relaxation allowed. Just one day, to show their respected Lord(s) some affection. Meanwhile the Couch Potatoes would have every day of the week, every available second, to worship our Lord, the ever blessed boob tube.

But, you were not there to create any religion, and you were not there to branch off another living race. Then again, being the couch potato that you are, you would probably have been too lazy to create those things even if you had been there.

Heck, don't get me wrong. I know that you don't think that there can ever come any good from being addicted to the T.V. (for that is what we are.) You may say that "addicted" is too strong a word for you and I. After all, you can't exactly compare an alcoholic or a chain smoker to a couch potato... or can you?

In order to solve such a mind bending, and emotionally spiritual question, let us examine the definition of the very word.

According to the Winston Canadian Dictionary For Schools, which I borrowed and never returned to my grade four teacher, the definition is as follows:

ad-dict (a-dikt'), v.t. to devote or give (oneself) up to a habit, (sometimes a bad one); as, he addicts himself to music, alcohol, etc. -n. (ad'ikt), one who is given over to a habit; as a drug. addict.-n. ad-dic'tion.

Hmmmmmm. Not the best definition. Let us explore other alternatives. Let's see what the Larousse's French-English English-French Dictionary has to say about all this:

addict [adikt] s.toxicomane; fanatique, m. (sport); [edikt] v. s'adonner a.

Sure, I could have given you another all English definition, but this is Canada, you should understand both of these utterly bizarre languages. Anyhow, all of the French words used in the definition sound very much like their English meanings.

Intoxicating, fanatic, to give oneself to. Don't these words alone say that anyone who has any desire to become an individual, have a personality, or both, will not allow themselves to fall into the trap of addiction?

It's all too easy to fall into that trap, but climbing out of it is a very treacherous climb upwards.

Hello, my name is Mary Appleziemer, and I am a couch potato....

But seriously folks, maybe there should be a Couch Potato Anonymous club. (CPA)

Hey, somebody could make a decent living out of this idea.

Of course the first step to being cured is to admit that you have a problem. Listen, (what a stupid word to write, when you're going to be reading this) I know that admitting to being a couch potato is an embarrassing thing. It's got to be right up there on your "10-most-desirable-things-to-admit-list." Yeah, directly below admitting to having Hemeroids or Pubic Lice, but you'll feel much better about yourself.

Now that you have decided to stop being a couch potato, you get up from that smelly old couch and look around the house for something to do.

The bathrooms haven't been washed in months, and the floor can't even be seen with all the empty beer cans, potato chip bags, and unread newspapers all over it. Well, not all of the newspaper goes to waste. On Saturday mornings you faithfully read the comics and on all the other days you look in on your horoscope.

"I've gotta gittoutta here," is the first phrase that comes to mind. Just at this moment, your mother calls to see how you're doing and to remind you that guests are coming over for dinner.

After coaxing her into a false sense of security, by promising to clean the house, you rush up the stairs to take a quick shower, get dressed, brush your teeth and run out the door.

While turning the key in the door, you suddenly realize that you are not up to being laughed at by every stranger who sees you.

You turn the key to open the door, run back in as quickly as your body allows you to, and plop down in front of the television set, yet again.

Why did you fail? Your horoscope said that you would have a productive day. Why didn't that happen? Simple. Because it lied.

Some people call this type of behaviour an illness. They call it an inferiority complex... or something. Others, such as my mother, call it something else. But this is a family rated essay, so I won't reveal what the other school of thought is.

In any case, there must be a cure for this "Couch Potato Syndrome" which turns the ordinary human male and/or female into a creature which has the ability to watch endless hours of television, commercials and all, without paying any attention to any of it.

Then again, after long hours of practice at being a couch potato, you become so lazy that you stop eating because the food is in the kitchen and you're not.

This starvation is almost a diet supplement.

In any case, always remember that you are not alone. There is help out there. The only problem is that being a couch potato kind of disables you from searching out any sort of cure.

AT THE MAX

If you are a fan of the Rolling Stones or have heard even a few of their songs then this show is something that cannot be missed. At The Max is being presented at Ontario Place in the famed Cinisphere. For those who have never heard of the Cinisphere I can tell you that you have never seen a good show, bar none. The Cinisphere is a sphere shaped cinema that has a heart stopping six story screen.

I had the chance last Friday night to see At The Max and I am here to tell you that it was one of the most exciting shows I have ever seen anywhere. I saw the Rolling Stones twice on their "Steel Wheels Tour" and thought that I had experienced the ultimate in concert shows. That was until Friday night changed my perspective of The Rolling Stones.

The concert is filmed during The Stones London show on a special type of film called Imax. The filming on Imax allows this show to be carried by approximately 70 Imax theatres in the world. Ontario Place has been showing At The Max since October 25 and it will run until January 5.

If you read the advertisement in this paper you will see that it says "LARGER THAN LIVE", well trust me, it is. To see Mick and the boys on a screen that is six stories high is something you will not soon forget. They literally look like monsters of rock.

The sound system inside this theatre is simply amazing. From the first little noise that is made to the last voice as the concert ends, everything is crystal clear. As I said before, I saw The Stones twice while they were on tour, once at the EX and once at Skydome. There is no way that either of those shows could compare in sound quality to the presentation of At The Max.

I kid you not that I quite honestly felt like I was sitting on top of the camera while this was being filmed. The camera work for this concert is beyond amazing. The use of cranes and special stage tracking allow these camera operators to present a view of the performers that you usually do not get to see.

The Stones open with (what else?) Start Me Up and play solid Rock & Roll right through to the encore hit (I Can't Get No) Satisfaction.

THIS IS A "MUST SEE" SHOW AND IT IS WAY CHEAPER AND MUCH MORE EXCITING THAN ANY CONCERT THAT I HAVE EVER SEEN.

CHECK IT OUT!!!
